JOHN J. FLAVIN PROMOTED TO SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT AND CHIEF BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT OFFICER AT DELPHI TECHNOLOGY

Flavin's expanded responsibilities now include Sales, Marketing and Customer Service as he continues to help Delphi Technology grow market share and plan for the future

Boston, MA – May 27, 2014 – Delphi Technology, the recognized industry leader in technology solutions for the medical professional liability industry and a leading provider of technology solutions to the insurance and risk management industries, today announced the promotion of John J. Flavin to Senior Vice President and Chief Business Development Officer reporting directly to CEO Sam Fang.

Flavin joined the company in March, 2012 as Vice President of Sales charged with developing and leading the Delphi Technology sales organization. In January 2013, John was promoted to Senior Vice President where he was charged with developing and leading the Customer Service organization. In his expanded role, Flavin will continue his role in Customer Service and will also spearhead the Marketing and Sales operations to ensure an integrated and well executed strategy and plan for Delphi's business development in existing and new market segments.

Commenting on Flavin's promotion, Sam Fang, said, "I congratulate John on this well deserved promotion and look forward to his leadership and guidance as we look to the future and the growth of Delphi Technology in products, services, and markets. He's been with the company for two years and in that time we've had the benefit of his more than twenty-five years of experience. John has proven to be a skilled leader, so looking to him to play a greater role in our future was a logical and easy decision."
