Rex James Joins Delphi Technology as Vice President of P&C Sales

Leading provider of business software and technology solutions to the P&C insurance market taps proven senior sales expert to drive continued growth and market penetration

Boston, MA – May 4, 2016 - Delphi Technology, Inc., the recognized leader in business software solutions for the healthcare professional liability industry and an emerging provider of business software solutions to the property and casualty insurance industry, today announced that Rex James has joined the company as Vice President of P&C Sales. James is charged with developing and leading the P&C sales process for Delphi’s newly-created Property & Casualty product division, with an initial focus on new business development initiatives, in order to support Delphi’s continued expansion into new segments of the insurance market.

Commenting on James’ appointment, John J. Flavin, Delphi Technology’s Senior Vice President and Chief Business Development Officer, said, “I am extremely pleased to announce Rex’s appointment. He brings a long and successful career having spent more than thirty years in senior management, sales, services and technology – a combination that will serve Delphi Technology well as we continue to expand our product and consulting services offerings, leverage our past successes, and establish a presence in new insurance markets”.

“I’m very excited about this opportunity”, said James. With two new P&C products built on Delphi’s new Velocity platform, Delphi Accelerator and Delphi Policy, along with Delphi’s reputation for innovation, I expect the new P&C division to grow rapidly.”

James brings deep expertise in executing successful business development and sales strategies. Prior to joining Delphi Technology, James served in executive sales/operations leadership positions at eBao Tech, CSC, ISO, and AQS. He attended Purdue University and IUPUI in Indianapolis.
